We are going through extremely rough times, where everything is upside down, no one can claim to know the future, no one knows when or how.... or can claim to know !

Having said that, this time can be a golden opportunity for reform, and for setting new rules with new priorities and strategies.

It is a chance to develop new products, obtain better prices; it is a chance for new and creative ideas to emerge, and a chance for young entrepreneurs to start new businesses.

More than 10 years ago while talking about globalization, it was the start of mergers and acquisitions, big companies joining forces to develop into the 21st century more economically, develop new products and transfer various technologies.... with the objective of remaining ahead of the competition.

It is not only a good time for building, it is actually now time for financial engineering, combining investments, co-investing and reaching further, it is time for developers and construction companies to unite and become one; everyone would benefit and gain.... Either through mergers or acquisitions of companies.... Going to new lands and exploring new territories.

The real estate sector is made of stone, it has always been blessed with the word real - unlike other investment options this is the one that is made out of brick and mortar and remains solid, that is what has been witnessed over time.

Like Monopoly Money, future investments will now head towards buying properties where rental incomes and sales prices are known and no longer venture with fluid stocks. People will finally prefer to buy/own a building registered under their name rather than owning shares in a company owned by so many others.

While the most advanced have suffered the most, and least developed have suffered the least.... The least developed are now the opportunity for future growth, acting as the way out of this crisis.

It is in the time of crisis where fortunes are made, we need to always remain ahead, keep focused, explore different territories, be lenient in our approach.... Think positive !
